Lybia, both as a government and a people, gave important support to the Algerian Revolution in various areas.

This political attitude went hand in hand with the wide popular support met by the Algerian Revolution in Lybia. In this article, we attempt to answer a fundamental question: What are the limits of the political and diplomatic support, which the Libyan authorities gave the Algerian Revolution?

The article also deals with the Libyan authorities attitude toward the algerian Revolution and the role of King Idris Senouci in guiding the solidarity policy toward Algeria. Also will be treated here the role of the Libyan political support in backing the Algerian cause.
