It is with great pleasure and immense pride that we, the esteemed University of Jijel, announce the inception of the inaugural special issue of the Legal and Political Research Journal in the English language. This remarkable milestone signifies a significant leap forward in our relentless pursuit of enhancing the accessibility and global recognition of our journal. This marks a remarkable achievement as it is the first instance of an Algerian university publishing an entire issue in English within a political science journal. Comprising an array of meticulously crafted articles authored by esteemed researchers in law and political sciences, this edition represents an arduous yet gratifying endeavor aimed at elevating the journal's prominence and garnering acclaim locally and internationally.

This groundbreaking initiative sets a remarkable precedent for all future publications emanating from our esteemed university. It serves as a testament to our unwavering commitment to the English language's indispensable role in fostering scientific research, innovation, and creativity. We extend our profound gratitude to the esteemed editorial team of the journal for their innovative proposition to publish this edition in English. Their astute discernment has paved the way for a truly global platform, inviting scholars and researchers from every corner of the world to disseminate their groundbreaking insights through the journals of our esteemed university.

We earnestly implore researchers worldwide to place their unwavering trust in the proficiency and expertise of our dedicated directors, further affirming our university's commitment to excellence. We remain resolute in our determination to accompany and support our journals, ensuring their resounding success, unwavering development, and unwavering refinement. Together, we shall forge ahead, strengthening the Algerian university's position as a vanguard of knowledge and intellectual growth on the global stage.
